

DePaul Recognized for Excellence

DePaul was honored to receive a number of awards in 2015 for its efforts to provide affordable, well-designed, supportive housing in environments focused on recovery and support in Western New York.

DePaul's Carriage Factory Apartments in Rochester's historic Susan B. Anthony neighborhood continued to accumulate accolades including the National Housing & Rehabilitation Association's J. Timothy Anderson Award for Excellence in Historic Rehabilitation in the category of Best Historic Rehab Utilizing Low-Income Housing Tax Credits. Additionally, the Carriage Factory was selected as a finalist for the Most Advanced Financial Structure and Best Mill or Factory Rehabilitation award. DePaul transformed the over 100-year-old Cunningham Carriage Factory, which sat vacant for decades, into 71 studio, one- and two-bedroom loft apartments for income-eligible tenants.

Also in November, DePaul's Carriage Factory Apartments received the Barber Conable Award from the Landmark Society of Western New York, recognizing a large-scale rehabilitation of a historic building in the Rochester region completed within the last two years.

In December 2015, DePaul's Rochester View Apartments received the Community Impact Award from the New York Housing Conference. The 61-unit community located in Henrietta, New York serves income-eligible tenants who are Deaf, hard of hearing and use American Sign Language. DePaul partnered

Resides at Former DePaul Community Residence

They say when one door closes, a window opens. When Rebecca Nerestant and her husband Himler walked through the door of DePaul's former North Chili Community Residence in North Chili, New York, they knew immediately they had found their new home.

"We did a walk through, and were amazed with the place," said Rebecca. "It was everything we needed. It even had a few extra fridges and freezers which come in handy with a large family."

The Nerestants were a family of five until July 2015 when Rebecca's sister-in-law suddenly passed away, leaving her five children in need of a home. Rebecca, Himler and their three children – Ezekiel, 3, Hadassah, 2, and Gideon, under one-year-old – gladly made room in their lives for their nieces, nephews and cousins Remiah, 16, Joseph, 15, Brianna, 12, Trinity, 11 and Riley, 10.

The family lived at Pearce Memorial Church's Mission Home until finding the North Chili residence. In addition to being in the Churchville-Chili school district and close to the family's church community, Rebecca said DePaul's former North Chili community residence had enough space for everyone.

Since arriving in Rochester, the Nerestants have been the recipients of dozens of gestures of kindness and thousands of dollars in donations. Community volunteers and area businesses have helped transition the North Chili home to an aesthetic more suited to a family of ten.

"We've been blown away by the generosity of DePaul," Rebecca said. "They opened their doors when others may have shut them. They put their brains together and made it work for us."

The Villas at Rolling Ridge Now Open

DePaul's first Independent Senior Living Apartment Community, the Villas at Rolling Ridge in Newton Grove, North Carolina, are now open and accepting tenants. The eight newly-constructed, spacious, one-bedroom, single-level apartments include fully-equipped kitchens, handicapped-accessible bathrooms, an inviting porch and patio, 24-hour emergency maintenance, and are pet-friendly.

"We are thrilled to be offering this new and exciting living option to the area's growing senior population who are seeking a lifestyle that will allow them to maintain their independence well into the future," said Administrator Laura Anderson.

PROS Partners with Painters Union for a Fresh New Look

DePaul's Personalized Recovery Oriented Services (PROS) program is reaping the rewards from area painters learning their trade. Apprentices with the International Union Painters and Allied Trades arrived at DePaul's City Center on Mt. Hope Avenue in Rochester to perform community service as part of their training. The Finished Trades Institute of Western and Central New York provided the labor and equipment free of charge. DePaul provided the paint.

With the City Center having been open nearly 10 years, PROS Director Kathy Curtis-Rubin said the updates were much needed and appreciated.

"This is a win-win situation," she said. "It allows us to continue providing services in a beautiful, now spruced-up environment, while providing the apprentice men and women an opportunity to hone their skills under the supervision of the painters union."

Other residents showed off their talents through singing, rapping and reading poetry.

What's Cooking at DePaul?

There are more than good smells emanating from training kitchens in a number of DePaul's mental health programs in Western New York. In addition to learning cooking skills, clients are practicing vocational and social skills that are valuable on their road to recovery.

Interns from the University of Rochester's Deaf Wellness Center (DWC) have been leading Deaf and hard of hearing residents at the Rochester View Apartments (RVA) in Henrietta, New York, in bi-weekly cooking classes covering food safety, proper ways to handle cutting knives and more. Fifteen residents participated in the first class which involved learning how to peel and cut a variety of fruits and vegetables.

"This is a useful experience for residents because they come together and practice hands-on cooking skills which can be applied in their daily lives," said RVA Property Manager Denise Fry.

Residents at Halstead Square, a Single Room Occupancy Program in Rochester, New York, are using their community's training kitchen for classes with DePaul Cook Mike Cook. After discussing kitchen tools that would be useful in their rooms such as plates, utensils and microwave safe dishes, residents headed to the store to purchase food that could be easily prepared. Foodlink, a regional food hub, has also provided some ingredients for meals that can be prepared in residents' apartments. Classes are slated to continue in 2016.

Rochester View Apartments residents Monica and Barry learn how to peel and cut carrots with Sara, an intern with the University of Rochester's Deaf Wellness Center.

In December, the smell of Christmas cookies wafted from the training kitchen at Kensington Square, a DePaul Single Room Occupancy Program in Buffalo, New York. A peer-educator from the Restoration Society led residents in a lesson on holiday baking. Formal cooking classes will begin soon.

"This is a valuable addition to Kensington Square as it gives residents a chance to learn or relearn the skills necessary to move on to a more independent apartment where they can cook for themselves," said Program Director Jill Schmidt.

Residents at DePaul's Ridgeview Commons Treatment Apartment Program in Rochester, New York have utilized their training kitchen for a number of classes offered through Foodlink. Most recently, they've learned how to properly store food in the refrigerator, healthy nutrition habits and how to prepare meals on a budget.

"The training kitchen is a valuable resource in a client's road to recovery because it teaches them how to properly prepare meals, and how to utilize cooking as a coping skill," said Program Manager Rebecca Barnes.

At Seneca Square, a Single Room Occupancy Program in Buffalo, New York, about 20 residents have been working on everything from basic kitchen safety to identifying and following recipes. Residents have prepared various desserts in "Baking with Brandy" classes, led by Community Living Supervisor Brandy Mathis.

In December, Seneca Square began hosting 'open night in the training kitchen' available to any residents who want to bring in food to cook.

Seneca Square residents Erick K. and Clinton H. work to prepare food in the community's teaching kitchen.

Enrollees in DePaul's Personalized Recovery Oriented Services (PROS) program are using the training kitchen at DePaul's City Center in Rochester, New York to learn skills that are valuable on their road to recovery as they develop vocational and social skills necessary for living independently. The purpose of all recovery units, including the kitchen, is to practice skills used to effectively manage symptom-related barriers, so they can get and keep jobs, said Program Director Kathy Curtis-Rubin.

"Examples of this would be practicing skills to manage anger, or anxiety, or stay focused and on task, not being distracted by symptoms," said Curtis-Rubin. "The end result is prepared food for a great meal, with people learning to implement skills to manage barriers caused by their symptoms in the process."
