The Country Store at Woodcrest Commons is serving ice cream and become one of the more popular spots at the DePaul Senior Living Community in Henrietta.

"We've had people who want to move here just for the ice cream," said Activities Director Lindsay Lown. The store is open about four times a week, usually in the afternoons, but more recently the hours have been extended to after dinner. The store features eight flavors of Byrne Dairy and Purity ice cream for 50 cents a scoop. Maple walnut is the top requested flavor with vanilla bean, vanilla fudge, butter pecan, chocolate and strawberry as runner ups.

"Every couple of months we supply a flavor list to the residents and they have the opportunity to let us know what flavors appeal to them," said Lown. "Any time a resident is in the store, they usually talk flavors and we take note."

Residents also are encouraged to help out in the store, which offers other items like toiletries, arts and crafts, greeting cards and snacks. Resident Ed Zeller said he loves working the ice cream parlor because it gives him a purpose and he appreciates the feeling of being needed.

Items are sold at cost, and profits are put back into the activities fund, which is used for live entertainment, parties, happy hour, art therapy and community events.
