

Glenwell dietary director receives industry award on verge of retirement

March 31, 2020

Kenmore resident Francis Roselli, right, dietary director at Glenwell, a DePaul senior living community in Cheektowaga, stands with his wife, Candyce, after receiving the Council of Food Service Association's 2020 Silver Medal Award from the WNY Society for Health Care Food Service Administrators. Roselli was honored in March and retired Friday, ending his 55-year career.

Kenmore resident Francis Roselli, dietary director at Glenwell, a DePaul senior living community in Cheektowaga, has been honored with the Council of Food Service Association's 2020 Silver Medal Award from the WNY Society for Health Care Food Service Administrators. He retired Friday after nearly 16 years with DePaul, bringing his 55-year career to a close.

Roselli received the award at the Food Service Network of WNY annual awards presentation and dinner last month, which he attended with his wife, Candyce.

The Council of Food Service Association's Silver Medal Award recognizes dietary staff members who exhibit dedication, innovation and quality standards. DePaul called the honor a well-deserved testament to the over 55 years of service Roselli has provided to the industry, his associates and colleagues, and the clients and residents he has served.